Ellen Nowak

Secretary, Department of Administration

About the presentation: Foxconn has committed to investing $10 billion to build a state-of-the-art advanced manufacturing campus in Wisconsin. Secretary Nowak's presentation, Foxconn in Wisconsin: What Does It Mean for My Community, provides a brief overview of the project background and information and resources to help interested businesses anywhere in Wisconsin prepare for the future opportunities. The presentation provides examples of the statewide impacts communities are experiencing as a result of this historic investment in Wisconsin, and it provides information on steps to get involved in the project. Additionally, with more people employed in Wisconsin than ever before in 2018, Secretary Nowak's presentation includes an update on the state's efforts to ensure a robust talent pipeline for employers all across the state through investments that cultivate talent at home and market Wisconsin outside the state to key talent sources such as Midwest millennials and veterans and their spouses.

This event is free and open to all area businesses who have interest in providing products or services for Foxconn in the future. Questions and discussion will follow the presentation so all businesses in attendance will receive the latest news update on the project and the opportunities that lay ahead now and as the construction phases continue.
